Making text bigger

If you are squinting at your phone or computer, the device can fix that. Every modern device has a text-size setting — bigger letters, no new glasses required, and nothing else changes.

iPhone

Open Settings, then Appearance, then Text Size — drag the slider until the sample text looks comfortable. Turn on Bold Text on the same screen for extra clarity. On older versions (iOS 26 or earlier), it is Settings → Display & Brightness → Text Size. For even bigger text, go to Settings → Accessibility → Display & Text Size → Larger Text and drag that slider too.

Samsung

Open Settings, then Display, then Font size and style. The slider grows the text everywhere — messages, menus, and email. Turn on Bold font on the same screen for extra clarity.

Windows computer

Open Settings, then Accessibility, then Text size. The slider previews as you drag, and Apply makes it stick.

Need even bigger, just for a moment?

Magnification gesture. On iPhone, double-tap with three fingers to zoom the screen (turn it on first under Settings → Accessibility → Zoom). On Samsung, the same lives under Settings → Accessibility → Visibility enhancements → Magnification.

Too big now? Just drag the same slider back down. You cannot break anything — it is only a display setting.
